The Whirlwind Wrap is crocheted in Forest Floor and uses the Bullion stitch. I added some metal buckles because I love the look of hardware on garments but if that's not your gig, a shawl pin would also work beautifully.

The Tuxita Baby Tunic is knit in Blue Mint & Forest Floor using Garter & Stockinette stitch. The tiny tuxedo ruffle adds a little playfulness to an otherwise simple, vest bodice. My daughter Clover's modeling it over tights, but it would be equally adorable over baby's jeans, leggings or bloomers!

Get ready for fall with this sweet brimmed cloche from designer Kim Guzman. Kim chose the muted Grey Heather in Simply Soft for her crocheted creation, but this design would look equally lovely in any color—from Autumn Red to Chocolate. The sassy bow adds just the right touch of elegance and sophistication.

We love transition garments. You know, the kind you can slip on when the day gets a little chillier than you expected. Lisa Gentry has designed the perfect knit transition garment with her Toggle Jacket. From the lacy cuffs on the bracelet-length sleeves, to the easy two-button closure, the Toggle Jacket will help you handle those unpredictable early fall days in style.
